Too Tired to do Homework

Write the missing words.

Jose Martinez _____ nine years ______. He is a fourth grade student _____ Washington Elementary School. It is 7:00 P.M. ____ Jose has just finished __________ his dinner. His mother is standing ____ the sink washing the dishes. Jose walks into _____ living room and _______ on the TV. Then he ______ down ______ the sofa and puts his feet ____ on the coffee table.

“Jose,” his mother ________ out from the kitchen. “What are you ______________?”

“I’m watching __________,” answers Jose.

“It’s __________ time to watch TV,” says Jose’s _________. “It’s __________ to do your homework.”

“But Mom!” cries Jose. “It’s a baseball game ______________ the San Diego Padres and ________ Los Angeles Dodgers! I need to __________ what happens.”

“Sorry, but __________ report on California is what’s happening in this __________. Remember the report is _____ this Friday.”
“That's right, Mom. It's due ______ Friday. Today _____ only Tuesday. I have a lot ______ time to finish that report. I'm ___________ tired to do homework tonight.”

Jose's mother ________ into the living room and turns _______ the TV. She ______, “Listen, Jose. I'm ________ too. I've been working hard _______ day. But your homework is ________ important. It is your responsibility and _______ that you finish it. Now let's _____ at the table and get ______ the books, maps, pens, ________________, and everything else you _______ to do a beautiful report on the state of California.”

“Okay, okay,” answers Jose. I'll ___________ on the report.” Jose walks over to the ___________ table. “Mom, did ______ know San Diego is the second largest city in the _____________ of California?”

“Oh?” says _________ mother.

“Yes! And San Diego _______ beautiful beaches, a warm climate, and a major league baseball ___________ called the San Diego Padres.”

“That's ________ information, Jose. You _____ write that in your report!”

“By _______ way,” says Jose. “The Padres are playing _______ on Thursday night. If I finish _____ report, can I watch _____ game on TV?”

“Yes,” laughs Jose's mother. “If you finish _____________ report, you can ________________ the game on Thursday night.”